Voters choose city officials, OK proposals

Voters throughout the area made their choices Tuesday.

While there were no surprises in some communities where candidates were unopposed for offices, voters made it offical at the polls.

In Belleville, where Steve Jones was the sole candidate for two open seats on city council, he received a total of 258 votes according to unofficial reports from the office of the Wayne County Clerk.

Inkster voters in the Taylor School District helped approve the sale of $130 million in tax bonds by a district-wide vote of 5,617 to 4,550. Local totals were not available at press time.

Voters in the City of Northville returned unopposed Mayor Brian Turnbull to office with 719 votes while choosing John Carter and Andrew Krenz to serve on the two available city council terms. Carter received 602 votes, Andrew Krenz received 505 votes. Patrick L. Giesa received a total of 317 votes.

In the City of Plymouth, only four candidates vied for the four available terms on the city commission. Linda A. Filipczak garnered a total of 837 votes, Jennifer Kehoe received 1,078 votes, Alanna Maguire received 995 votes and Nick Moroz received 1,086 votes.

In Romulus, where current Mayor LeRoy Burcroff opted not to seek re-election, voters decided the hotly-contested mayoral race favoring current city Director of Building and Safety Robert McCraight over former Mayor Alan R. Lambert. Lambert, who previously served as mayor of the city from 2001 until 2013, received a total of 1,732 votes while McCraight was the choice of 2,483 voters.

Ellen Craig-Bragg, who was unopposed in her bid to return as Romulus City Clerk, received 3,415 votes. Romulus City Treasurer Stacy A. Paige was also unopposed and garnered 3,453 votes.

Romulus voters returned all seven incumbent city counil members to office. Incumbent Kathy Abdo received 2,100 votes; incumbent Council President John Barden received 2,530 votes; Incumbent Celeste Roscoe garnered 2,102 votes and incumbent Tina M. Talley received 2,333 votes. Longest-serving incumbent City Councilman William J. Wadsworth received 2.204 votes while incumbents Eva Webb and Virginia Williams received 2,022 and 2,433 votes respectively.

Newcomer Shakeel Ahmed received 851 votes; former City Councilman Harry Crout received 1,630 votes; Dwight Helms received 658 votes and David Hotz received 930 votes

A proposal to allow the publication of legal notices and minutes of the city in two electronic sites or a newspaper with reappointment every odd year was approved by a vote of 3,058 to 863.

Voters approved the renewal of the Huron School District Operating Millage Renewal by a vote of 1,497 to 669.

In Westland, another hotly contested race, incumbent Mayor William R. Wild was returned for his fourth term by a vote of 8,704. His opponent, City Councilwoman Tasha Green, received 3,367 votes.

Canton adds 8 hybrid vehicles to police fleet

Canton officials are charged up about the latest additions to the fleet of vehicles in the police department.

Canton has increased the number of hybrid patrol vehicles in the police department to a total of eight this year. This year, seven new Ford Hybrid Explorer Police Interceptor vehicles were added to the department, rather than the tradition Ford version. Ford Motor Co. representatives said the hybrid vehicle provides police agencies with improved power and performance, with no trade-offs when it comes to safety or interior passenger/cargo space when compared to the previous-generation vehicle.

In addition, Ford representatives claim, the Hybrid Explorer Police Interceptor is the only vehicle worldwide, engineered to meet the 75-mph rear impact crash test.

The Side Protection and Cabin Enhancement (SPACE) architecture with structural reinforcement works to protect officers on the job, according to the company literature.

"As part of the Canton Township board goals, we will continue to purchase hybrid vehicles for our police patrol fleet," said Township Supervisor Anne Marie Graham-Hudak. "These vehicles are a smart choice for our budget, providing a significant potential for fuel savings and reduced CO2 emissions," she added.

Canton Township Supervisor Anne Marie Graham-Hudak, Director of Police Services Chad Baugh and officers welcome the newest Ford Hybrid Explorer Police Interceptors to the township police force.

Ford states the hybrid Police Interceptors have an EPA-estimated rating of 24 mpg combined-a 41 percent improvement over the current Police Interceptor Utility vehicle with a conventional 3.7-liter gas engine.

Bond sale to fund demolition of former hospital

The Northville Township Board of Trustees unanimously approved a $12 million bond sale to continue demolition of the former state psychiatric hospital buildings at Legacy Park.

Board members voted on the resolution at a recent special meeting.

"This action will bring over 96 percent of the property to a natural state," said Township Supervisor Mark J. Abbo. "Once these buildings have been removed, we can begin implementing plans for public use of the land."

Eleven buildings and a series of tunnels still stand on the 332-acre site. When this demolition phase is complete, any remaining buildings will be clustered in a single 10-acre parcel, leaving the remaining 96 percent of the property for use as an active recreation site as outlined in the Township Master Plan. The demolition will begin as early as the summer of 2022.

> "The future of this property will enhance the quality of life for future generations.

The township will repay the bonds with revenue collected by a Brownfield Tax Increment Financing (TIF) district created earlier. No money from the township general fund will be used.

"The time for action is now," added Township Treasurer Jason Rhines. "For reasons including, but not limited to, historically low interest rates and continually rising costs of demolition, this is an opportune time to proceed with this project, which has been identified as a priority by our residents."

Rhines said he believes that with increasing property values, the prospect of further development on the property adjacent to Legacy Park, and careful and resourceful use of available funds, Northville will be able to remove any remaining buildings within the next few years.

Northville purchased the former hospital property from developer Schostak Brothers & Co. and their partner REI Investment Group Inc. (REIS). REIS still own the 82-acre development at the southwest corner of Seven Mile and Haggerty roads.

Taxes generated from the REIS development provides the brownfield TIF revenue, which will be used to repay the bonds. This TIF district captures the taxes on the increased value of property within its boundaries. Revenue grows as development occurs, and the value of the property increases. Approximately 30 acres of the corner remains available for development. Abbo said he expects new development to generate enough revenue to pay for any remaining demolition costs.

"This financing method achieves an important Township goal without diverting resources from other important services that our residents expect," Abbo said. "The future of this property will enhance the quality of life for future generations."

Wayne State joining effort to preserve Malcolm X house

Anthropology students at both Henry Ford College and Wayne State University are looking forward to a planned "dig" in Inkster next spring.

The students will be among those professionals searching the area surrounding the home at 4336 Williams St., hoping to find artifacts and relics of the time civil rights leader Malcolm X lived in the home. The renovation and preservation project will be funded by a $380,850 African American Civil Rights Grant awarded by the Historic Preservation Fund as administered by the National Park Service (NPS), Department of Interior.

Local Inkster activist Aaron Sims, executive director of the non-profit organization Project: We Hope, Dream, and Believe (WHDAB), worked for more than 13 years to preserve the home where Malcolm X lived in 1952 and 1953 with his brother, Wilfred Little.

The ongoing effort attracted the attention of Henry Ford College anthropology instructor Dr. Tareq. A. Ramadan who wrote the winning grant proposal and who will be involved in the renovation of the home. Members of the Inkster City Council helped Sims' efforts by allowing him to obtain the home. Recently, his non-profit group has been able to purchase the lots on both sides of the house, which is to become a museum. A community center and job training/youth tutorial center is planned at another lot across the street which the group recently obtained. The plan is to celebrate the efforts of Malcolm X, a civil rights icon during the 1960s, through memorabilia and authentic furnishings.

In the spring of 2022, Ramadan will coordinate a joint archaeological excavation project between WHDAB and the Wayne State University Department of Anthropology to survey and excavate areas around the house. The goal is to have everything completed and open to the public by 2023.

Since the grant was announced in July, the property has been registered in the National Register of Historic Places (NHRP) and in late September, the State Historical Preservation Office Review Board unanimously approved the nomination - a critical step toward the home ultimately being listed in the NRHP.

"Construction and renovation of this home will begin in the spring. We'll be maintaining the house in the meantime and conducting more research. We'll also collect oral history of the home in relation to the rest of the neighborhood and compile as much information about the area, historically, as possible," Ramadan said.

CANTON

25-year police veteran retires

Canton Township Police Ofc. Jeffrey Bessesen marked his final patrol shift last week as he began his retirement from the department.

Bessesen began his 25-year career with the department in 1996. During his service with the Canton police, Bessesen was assigned to road patrol, responding to calls for service, initiating contact with individuals and participating in the department Community Policing practices. In addition to his patrol duties, he spent time on the Rapid Response Unit and as a bicycle officer.

For a decade, Bessesen served in the Evidence Technician Unit consisting of a limited number of officers who are specially-trained to collect and process evidence from crime scenes. During his time on the unit, officials said, he was methodical in his collection procedures, producing evidence which oftentimes assisted the prosecution with obtaining successful felony convictions.

Throughout his career, Bessesen has received numerous accolades from citizens he has helped during their time of need. His commanding officers noted that among his peers, Bessesen is well-liked, known for his sense of humor and his easy-going personality; he is also respected as someone who would provide solid back-up when high-pressure situations arose in the field.

"Officer Bessesen's knowledge and experience have made him a valuable member of our patrol unit for the past 25 years," said Chad Baugh, director of police services. "Jeff can move into retirement knowing with satisfaction he has served his community well, and he is wished all the best in his future endeavors."

Northville

School emergency radio system is upgraded

An upgrade of emergency radio equipment has ensured that Northville students are safer in their classrooms.

The upgrades, a partnership between the Northville Public Schools and the Northville Township Fire Department, were installed in seven Northville school buildings. The upgrades improved the hardware inside the school buildings that allows communication between emergency radios, the key tool used by fire, medical and policy emergency teams. The enhancements were made to the Emergency Responder Radio Communication Systems (ERRC), according to school officials.

New radio systems were installed at Northville High School, Meads Mill Middle School, Moraine Elementary and Ridge Wood Elementary in Northville Township along with Thornton Creek Elementary in Novi and Hillside Middle School and Old Village School in the City of Northville. The other school buildings were field tested by fire officials and found to be within emergency radio signal guidelines.

The failure of the radio system to meet required specifications was first reported by fire officials in 2018. Factors impacting the efficiency of the radios included building construction (concrete, metal, energy-efficient glass), topography, obstructions and below grade structures. In response, district officials commissioned testing for all school buildings and installed a temporary solution at the high school until the permanent improvement was installed.

> "This is a huge accomplishment for our department, for the school district and for the community at large.

Northville Township requires testing of the radio system at every new building as part of the plan review process. For existing buildings, the Fire Marshal works with responding crews to address known radio failures and works to coordinate testing, and if necessary, enhancement, officials said.

District officials worked with the Northville Township Fire Marshal on the project and utilized funding from a grant from the U.S. Department of Justice's Office of Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS), completed the enhancement system before school began this fall.

In one stairwell at Northville High School alone, the upgrade showed a radio signal with 5,000 times more powerful of a signal, officials said. .

"This is a huge accomplishment for our department, for the school district and for the community at large," Township Fire Chief Brent Siegel said. Communications are the number one failure identified during active shooter events and National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health Line of Duty Death reports.

"This is a big win for the community," Siegel said.

Welcome home

Northville native and Miss Michigan 2021 Vivian Zhong visited the township board of trustees meeting last week to accept a resolution congratulating her on her success while simultaneously attending medical school and supporting pediatric cancer research. The Northville High School graduate also received special tributes from Sen. Dayna Polehanki, Rep. Matt Koleszar and Wayne County Commissioner Terry Marecki. Zhong will compete in the Miss American pageant in December.

our community," concluded Trustee Mindy Herrmann. "For years we have wanted to provide our residents with the opportunity to utilize this property. By taking this action, we are one step closer to making that a reality."

The Township acquired the property in 2009 after a millage election. It included 20 buildings, a water tower, a power plant, and other infrastructure. The first buildings were demolished in 2012. The signature nine-story, 252,174-square-foot psychiatric hospital came down in 2018.

PLYMOUTH - SUMPTER

Proposed development prompts neighbors' concerns

Several Plymouth Township residents do not want new neighbors in their Ann Arbor Road enclave.

A proposal for a 373-unit development at the site of the former Elks Lodge was presented to the Plymouth Township Planning Commission members earlier this month by representatives of Toll Brothers Development and Pomeroy Living. The proposal included 270 rental apartment units and 103 owner occupied townhomes on the site. In addition, the development would include a multi-purpose clubhouse. The property is off Ann Arbor Road just west of Haggerty and near the Waverly Village subdivision.

Rental units would be priced at $1,400 to $2,200 a month, developers estimated.

Several residents spoke to the commissioners during the public hearing on the plan, criticizing the potential density of the plan and the loss of 34-acres of green space. Nearby residents questioned the potential disruption of the peaceful environment now enjoyed and the impact on the wildlife prevalent in the area. A neighbor said that deer, foxes, owls and other wildlife would be displaced by the development.

One resident said the potential for turning Ann Arbor Road into a copy of Ford Road in Canton which is notorious for heavy traffic and density. Several residents said the plans proposed included too many units for the space and would result in serious traffic problems in the area.

> Several residents said the plans proposed included too many units for the space and would result in serious traffic problems in the area.

In response to the residents' concerns, Alex Martin, president of Toll Brother' Michigan, said that company representatives met with nearby property owners to hear their concerns.

"We don't operate our businesses in a vacuum; we understand we have neighbors," Martin said. "We understand this is a collaborative process. Both companies have been in existence for decades, which wouldn't be the case if we simply operated on our own and didn't seek input from neighbors."

Martin added that 56 percent of the proposed development would be open space and that the heritage trees on the site would be preserved when possible.

The property is owned by Pomeroy Living which purchased the acreage in 2015 and the Elks' property in February. While the plan initially was to build senior housing, that business model has changed, according to company President Nick Peraino.

Commission members tabled the issue until the developers could return with a plan more inclusive of the concerns expressed by residents.

Bids for 3 township-owned sites accepted until Dec. 3

Sumpter Township Supervisor Tim Bowman planned to place "For Sale" signs at three properties yesterday, hoping to find bidders for the sites.

The three properties, two sites on Arcona and Martinsville roads and a parcel located behind the medical center on Sumpter Road, have been the subject of discussion by township officials for several weeks.

At a meeting last month, some neighboring residents protested the proposed sale of the commercially-zoned sites, claiming development would interfere with their enjoyment of the adjacent property. Trustees, while sympathetic, explained that the sites were commercially zoned and in a commercial area and that the sale of the properties in question was necessary in an effort to bring growth and development to the township.

During the meeting Oct. 24, trustees argued that an extension of the originally proposed time to bid on the properties was necessary. Trustee Don LaPorte suggested that the 15 days originally proposed to allow bids and proposals be extended to 45 or even 60 days. LaPorte said that potential bidders might need the time to take money from savings or retirement accounts and that alone could take the 10 or 15 days allotted for the bidding process.

> Anybody interested in the property is already aware we are putting it up for sale. This will just make the sale totally transparent.

Bowman was adamant, however, that "15 days is plenty enough time. I think two weeks is plenty of time. It's been out there for a long time that these properties were going up for sale," he said. He insisted that serious bidders for the property would have the financial means available and would not need the extra time.

Trustee Peggy Morgan agreed with LaPorte that the time should be extended to at least 30 days.

"I don't see why there is a huge rush" she said. "Let's give half a shot to anybody who wants to who might want to buy. Let's give everyone a fair shake," she said.

Bowman remained unconvinced and insisted that those who intended to bid on property like this have the funds available.

Trustee Matt Oddy was also in favor of allowing more time for potential bidders on the property. He suggested that posting the property with for sale signs and publishing the notice of sale would also take time, and could take up to 10 days or two weeks to have printed.

Bowman said that rather than the two weeks to have signs printed, he could have them "in the ground at the sites tomorrow" and said his office would take charge of the signage at all three of the sites being sold.

"I'll get the signs sign post them myself. It won't take me 10 days to get a sign," Bowman said.

Township Clerk Esther Hurst was also in favor of slowing the process to allow for more transparency.

"We can do the extension of time. We need to slow down and be sure we are doing things in the right way," she said. "If we don't, it is going to burn us later."

Trustee Tim Rush, too, was in favor of a longer bid process.

"I want to make sure everybody has the opportunity to bid on the property," he said. "We've been talking about this for months. Anybody interested in the property is already aware we are putting it up for sale. This will just make the sale totally transparent."

Trustees discussed the necessary information to be included on the signs and suggested that the township have a packet with all the information about the property available at township hall and post the description and all pertinent information about the property and the bid process on the township website.

The board members agreed to open the bidding process Nov. 3 to allow Hurst and Bowman to ensure that all the necessary information and signage was complete. Bids will be accepted on the properties until close of business Dec. 3.

Wayne - Westland

New scholarship program offered in district

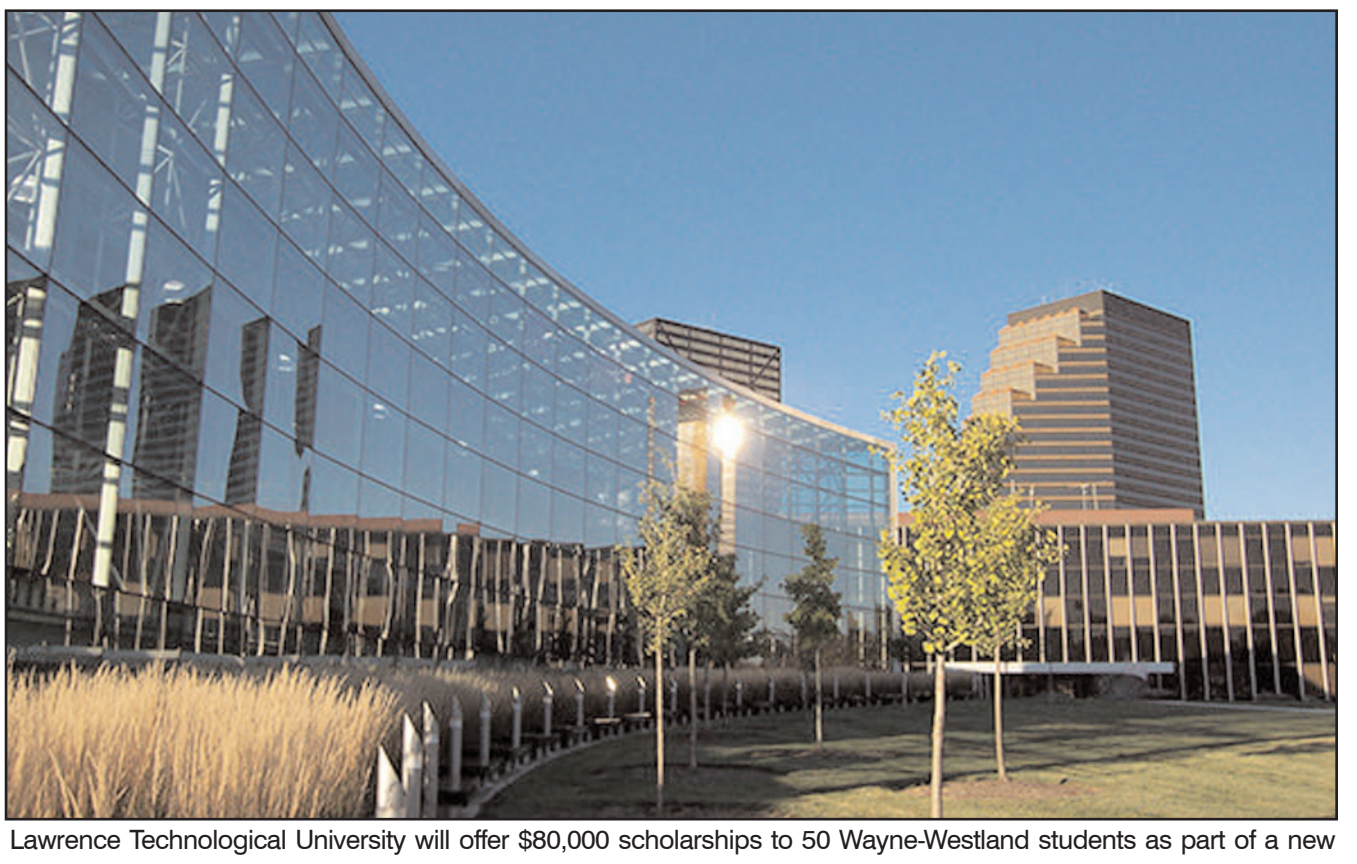
Students in Wayne-Westland schools will have the opportunity to apply for an $80,000 scholarship at Lawrence Technological University (LTU) among several other benefits offered as part of a new partnership between the district and the university.

The partnership, called the Blue Devil Wayne-Westland Scholars Program, includes the opportunity to earn a college degree in science, technology, engineering, arts, or math (STEAM). The Blue Devil Wayne-Westland Scholars program will provide scholarships to 50 Wayne-Westland students from John Glenn and Wayne Memorial High School and the William D. Ford Career-Technical Center. Each scholarship is worth $80,000.

"This new partnership accomplishes several of our goals as a school district. We want to create more STEAM scholars to fill the huge talent gap in those disciplines. This gap is especially severe in Southeast Michigan," said Dr. John Dignan, superintendent, Wayne-Westland Community Schools.

In addition to the Blue Devil Wayne-Westland Scholars program, LTU will also design middle school summer camps in the STEAM disciplines that will provide educational and career exploration for students in the middle schools. College staff will also host students in its "Extreme Science Saturdays" program and establish a focused STEAM exploration day for Wayne-Westland middle schools.

Campus tours of Lawrence Technological University will be available to Wayne-Westland students and the university staff will also provide workshops for Wayne-Westland teachers in teaching techniques known as Active Collaborative Learning and Project-Based Learning.



Lawrence Technological University will offer $80,000 scholarships to 50 Wayne-Westland students as part of a new program.

"The programs and degrees Lawrence Tech offers in the STEAM disciplines lead to exciting, well-paying careers that can help solve some of society's biggest problems, from sustainability to better health care," LTU president Virinder Moudgil said. "Higher education improves people's lives in profound ways, and we're happy to partner with the Wayne-Westland Community Schools to offer more opportunities for their students."

Lawrence Technological University is a private university founded in 1932 that offers more than 100 programs through the doctoral level in Colleges of Architecture and Design, Arts and Sciences, Engineering, and Management. The Brookings Institution ranks Lawrence Tech fifth nationwide for boosting graduates' earning power. The 107-acre campus is located in Southfield. For more information, visit https://www.ltu.edu/ .
